Competition fears over UK grocery tie-up

Britain's competition watchdog is expected to investigate merger plans by J Sainsbury and Asda that would see the UK supermarket rivals leapfrog retail leader Tesco with more than 53 per cent of the grocery market.

Details of the £15bn tie-up between one of Britain's oldest food retailers and the Walmart-owned grocer are set to be unveiled today. Lawyers, politicians and suppliers lined up to call on the Competition and Markets Authority to launch a probe into the all-share deal that would see the US Walmart become the merged group's biggest shareholder. The US retailer will not have a controlling stake in the new company.
